Pottery Workshop

Description

Duration: 6 hours

Costs: Starting from €12,50,-

Time: 10 am

In Bhaktapur, the tradition of making pottery is still alive. This can be best seen at the two adjoining pottery squares. During the daytime you can see people working the traditional way and spinning their wheels to make all sorts of ceramics out of the big masses of clay stored around the place.

Amidst this inspiring scenery your pottery workshop is organised in one of the dwelling houses just next to pottery square. During daily operation this is a real workshop where every day hundreds of pots are made.

During your class you will be taught the principles of making pottery and will be introduced and involved in all the parts of the process; from processing the clay to actually spinning the wheel. At the end of the workshop you will have enough skills to make your own small pot and take this, along with a great learning experience, home.
